

As a flight attendant of 20 years, i urge you to not relax the rules for cell phone use onboard aircraft. until it is proven beyond any doubt that cell phone use will NEVER interfere with navigational instruments i personally do not want to be onboard with even the slightest possibility of this occurring. Flight Attendants will be responsible for policing the cabin for usage and possible disruptions between passengers in an already tense environment. potential terrorists would also be able to use this relaxation of rules to more easily communicate with one another and coordinate plans of action onboard. please maintain current rules as is.
